

Project STOP news – Police

Since the inception of Project STOP and the resultant input of information onto the system, the State Drug Investigation Unit of the Queensland Police has made a number of arrests of suspects involved in the purchase and diversion of pseudoephedrine based products for use in the illicit drug trade.

The information provided through the project is assisting investigators to identify persons involved in the diversion of pseudoephedrine based products to the illicit marketplace and persons actively involved in the production and manufacture of illicit drugs.

The information placed on Project STOP is an invaluable intelligence tool which will continue to improve as the information available increases.

The State Drug Investigation Unit wishes to thank pharmacy for your diligence, your adoption of this valuable resource and strongly encourages pharmacists to continue to input information on sales into the system.
